

Fill in the blank with the term that is described.

- _____ 1. The use of comments within source code to describe what it does.
- _____ 2. A contract set up between client and development team.
- _____ 3. An iterative process is one that incorporates feedback and involves an element of repetition.
- _____ 4. They use commands and instructions based on English words or phrases.
- _____ 5. The detection, location and removal of errors in a program.
- _____ 6. A series of stages involving defined methods to produce a software project according to an initial specification.
- _____ 7. Also known as imperative languages because the programs follow a sequence of steps until they terminate.
- _____ 8. Rapid Application Development.
- _____ 9. A program is reliable if it runs well and is never brought to a halt by a design flaw.
- _____ 10. Top-down design of sectioning a large and complex system into smaller and more easily manageable components.
- _____ 11. A pen and paper exercise to debug a program.
- _____ 12. A method of program refinement that starts with individual modules and builds them up into a complete program.
- _____ 13. A library includes code for standard algorithms that can be re-used by programmers.
- _____ 14. A looping system where information is fed back in to a computer system.
- _____ 15. The finished program runs to specification and is robust and reliable.
- _____ 16. Commercial Off The Shelf software.
- _____ 17. A document outlining the program requirements set by the client.
- _____ 18. The person responsible for analysing and determining whether a task is suitable for pursuit using a computer.
- _____ 19. The person or group that initiates the development process by specifying a problem.
- _____ 20. A system that responds to an external event such as mouse click or a key press.