

Words are placed backwards, forward, diagonally, up and down. Clues listed below can help you find the words. Circle the hidden vocabulary words in the maze.

A computers own language. (11)

A detailed description of the program as a structured diagram or pseudocode. (6)

A detailed study of the problem which produces a clear description of it. (8)

A general purpose high level language. (6)

A high level language used for business programs. (5)

Checking the software against the original specification to make sure that it make sure that it meets every requirement. (10)

Checking the specified inputs and outputs of the program against those predicted in the design. (7)

Code which can be edited and changed easily later on because it has been written in a clear and understandable way (12)

Code which is written as a series of sub programs which can gbe tested independently (7)

Code written using meaningful variable and procedure names (8)

Part of a program which will return a value. (8)

Programs may need to be amended to suit new circumstances such as different hardware or operating system. (11)

Source code can be compiled to run on different platforms. (8)

Translates low level language to machine code in one operation. (9)

Translates source code to machine code in one operation. (8)

Usually it will match up to a sub-problem which has been identified in the top-down process. (9)

When you give a variable a new value (10)

a method used to present the design of a program (16)

a range of test data is entered into the program to make sure the output is as expected (12)

provides all the info needed to run the program (9)

states the hardware and software requirements for a program (14)